STEAMER ALLOWED TO GO ON

Thrilling Story Told By Mrs. Egan, Who Was a Passenger On the British Steamer Barulos Which Was Halted By a Turkish Submarine Commanded By a German Officer In the Mediterranean-Most of Those On Board Were Orientals and Greeks-When Shot Was Heard Passengers Became Panicky-250

New York.-A Turkish submarine stopped the British passenger ship Barulos in the Mediterranean and after 25 persons had been drowned assisted in rescuing many of the 250 passengers who had gone overboard in a panic, according to Eleanor Franklin Egan, an eye-witness, who arrived here on the steamship New York.

The Barulos, according to Mrs. Egan, who is a writer, returning from a six months' trip through Southern Europe, left Piraeus for Alexandria on October 2. Although the ship flew the British flag, her crew was Greek, the passengers, a majority third-class, being chiefly Greeks and Orientals. When about five hours south of Crete the ship picked up three boats containing the crew of the British steamship Sailor Prince, which had been sunk by a submarine a few hours previous.

The Barulos, Mrs. Egan said, carried only four lifeboats, each with a capacity for 30 people. The picking up of the crew of the Sallor Prince created a feeling of excitement which was at fever heat, when suddenly a submarine came to the surface about two miles distant and fired a shot over the Barulos, evidently as a signal for her to stop.

In Wild Panic.

"Instantly a wild panic broke loose," said Mrs. Egan. "The four lifeboats of the Barulos were resting in their chocks, while swung alongside were the two boats in which the mon from the Sallor Prince had made their

"Led by the crew and the fireroom force, the passengers rushed for the Women, unable to get to the boats, threw their children into the sea and jumped after them. Frightened sailors cut the ropes holding the small boats, and when the latter crashed into the water three of the six were swamped and emptied of their

"I was at the rail when the submarine appeared, and I started back toward the stairs leading below, with the idea of helping to quell the panic. I was caught in the rush and literally forced over the side into the sea. I had a hard time to keep above the water, my difficulties being aggravated by the struggles of others trying to eatch hold of me.

"It seemed that I had no sooner struck the water than the submarine appeared under the bow of our ship. On her deck I saw a number of men with an officer, whom I took to be an Austrian. The submersible had her collapsible lifeboat out and the submarine crew were pulling people out of the water onto her deck.

"The officer was holding up his hands shouting to the people in the water to be calm. I heard him say in "For God's sake, go back to your ship, we are not murderers."

HUNTERS URGED TO PROTECT HEALTH

Dixon Calls On Sportsmen To Look After Waste In Forest Camps. Calls Attention To Law.

Harrisburg .- Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, State Commissioner of Health, called upon the hunters of Pennsylvania to take steps to protect the public health while they are in the woods after deer next month. It is estimated that about 7,000 persons will go deer hunting on State lands alone, and the commissioner has sent this letter to every one receiving a State permit, asking them to take care of waste at camps, so that streams may not be polluted.

The commissioner's letter is as fol-

"I note that you have been granted a permit by the State Forestry Department to erect a camp within a State forest reservation. In this connection I wish to call your attention to Rule 3, of the regulations printed on the back of your permit, which stipulates that 'springs and streams must not be contaminated."

"This rule is inserted to emphasize the provisions of an Act of the General Assembly approved April 22, 1905, which prohibits the discharge of any sewage into State waters. This law was made necessary because the discharge of sewage from camps, private homes and publicly and privately owned sewer systems, not only caused obnoxious conditions, but largely was responsible for the spread of various forms of water-borne disease by the pollution of streams used as sources of public or private water supply. Among these forms of disease which cause the death of thousands of our citizens annually may be mentioned typhoid fever and epidemic dysentery.

"In order to comply with the provisions of this law, it is necessary that all sewage from your camp be de stroyed in a sanitary and safe method and not discharged into a stream or left on the ground. Garbage also should be included with sewage. You probably will find that the best method of disposal will be by burying. The pit for garbage and sewage should be at least two hundred feet from any well, spring or stream and should be on level or only gently sloping ground. The accumulations in the pit should be covered each day with a thick sprinkling of chlorinated lime or hypochlorite of lime (bleach), and a layer of earth not less than three inches in thickness. When the deposits in the pit have accumulated to within eighteen inches of the surface of the ground, the dirt should be replaced and a new pit dug.

"When you abandon the camp, you must be sure that all the pits are refilled with earth and any excess neatly banked or spread over the top.'

State Will Guard Munition Plants.

Every plant in Pennsylvania manu facturing explosives, shells or other munitions of war, now is under special inspection by State inspectors. Rebeen made regularly for the last year and a half, but recently steps have been taken to improve the safety arrangements and to avoid as far as possible the accidents which statistics sent to the Capitol have shown probably are due to the "speeding up" of plants on war orders or the careless handling of dangerous substances.

The despatch of two of the experts from the Department of Labor and Industry to the Bethlehem Steel Works, is only part of the State campaign, as every works manufacturing munitions is to be visited by experts and supervisors in addition to the regular inspectors, and the preventive work oragnized as far as possible. The plan of the State officials is to insist upon strict inspection and rigid compliance with the regulations of the factory inspection, but to go beyond that by asking the co-operation of employes in making conditions safe.

Safety Devices Lessen Liability.

"Safety devices and precautions in an employer's plant reduce compensation liability. The more safeguards in a plant of an employer, the cheaper will be that employer's insurance. The less an employer must pay for insurance, the lower will be his manufac turing cost," is the warning given in Bulletin No. 1, of the State Workmen's Compensation Commission, just issued.

The bulletin also states that the fundamental principle of compensation "is that the cost of industrial accidents should be added to the selling cost of the product and be distributed among the consumers," and that "personal loss of the employe is as legitimately an element of the fair money cost of the production of the commodity as are expenditures for raw material for machinery or wages."

Validity Of Public Service Act Upheld The Dauphin County Court in a brief opinion refused to grant a preliminary injunction restraining the Public Serv ice Commission from passing on the contract for street lightning between the City of Williamsport and the Lycoming Edison Company. More important than the matter involved is the intimation of the Court that if the case is carried farther the constitutionality of the Public Service law, which is attacked in the petition, filed by Abraham Fisher, a resident of Williamsport, will be upheld.
